Evidence Law
(Version: 4 October 2016)

COURSE CONTENT AND APPROACH

The Course consists of 11 topics. The content of the Course is provided in the lecture recordings, the PowerPoint slides and the lecture outlines. The primary rules of evidence will be examined in the recordings. In line with the policy of the Part A Course, the approach will be more practical than theoretical. However, as Evidence Law is inherently complex and afflicted by difficulties which arise from the uneasy relationship between a 122 year old statute (‘the Evidence Act’) and the evolving common law, it will be necessary to consider many of the principles in some depth. This is the reason why the recordings are quite long for most of the topics. The framework of the Course is further considered in the introductory lecture (Topic 1) and related materials.

EXAMINATION

The examination will consist of a combination of hypothetical and essay-type questions. Candidates will be required to answer two questions. The questions will test the candidate’s understanding of the law and his or her ability to apply the principles to a range of issues covered in the Course.

READING LISTS

Local Books

- Chen Siyuan & Lionel Leo, The Law of Evidence in Singapore (Sweet & Maxwell, 2016).
- Chin Tet Yung, Evidence (Butterworths, 1988) (no longer in print but may possibly be found in libraries).

Indian reference works (optional reading)

English texts (the following are just some of the leading texts). Use with care because of differences between Singapore and English law.

Background to the Evidence Act

- James Fitzjames Stephen, The Indian Evidence Act (1 of 1872): with an introduction on the principles of judicial evidence (Calcutta: Thacker, Spink & Co., 1872) (no longer in print but may be found in libraries).
TOPIC 1: STATUTORY FRAMEWORK AND CONCEPTS

This lecture will involve a consideration of the nature of law of evidence, the scheme of the Evidence Act, the doctrine of relevancy and concepts. This outline (and other lecture outlines) should be read together with the slides presented.

I. Sources of Law:

- Evidence Act (Cap 97).
- The common law to the extent permitted.
- Provisions in other statutes.

II. Background to the Evidence Act

- Enacted in 1893. Largely based on Indian Evidence Act 1872
- For an historical account, see Skandinaviska Enskilda Banken AB (Publ), Singapore Branch v Asia Pacific Breweries (Singapore) Pte Ltd and Other Appeals [2007] 2 SLR(R) 367, at [28]-[29].
- Extracts of James Fitzjames Stephen’s Digest of the Law of Evidence and Introduction to the Indian Evidence Act 1872 (no longer in print but may be found in libraries).

III. The Evidence Act as a code.

- Bank of England v Vagliano (1891) AC 107, 144-145.
- Mahomed Syedol Ariffin v Yeoh Ooi Gark (1916) 2 AC 575, at 581.
- Section 2(2) of the Evidence Act.
- Law Society of Singapore v Tan Guat Neo Phyllis [2008] 2 SLR(R) 239, at [116]-[123].

IV. System of the Evidence Act.

1. Relevancy/admissibility (note the inclusionary nature of the rules). I.e., what can be proved? S 5 of the Act states that evidence may be given of ‘facts in issue’ and facts declared to be relevant by ss 6-57.

2. Modes of proof. I.e., how to prove facts? Oral, documentary, real evidence. See ss 61 and 62. Note that facts which have been judicially noticed (ss 58-59) or admitted (s 60) do not have to be proved. Documentary evidence is governed by ss 63-102 of the Act.

3. Production and effect of evidence. I.e., who has to prove what and to what degree? See ss 103-116 read with s 3(3)-(5) and s 4(1)-(3).

4. The rules which govern the adduction of evidence: who is capable of giving evidence? Can he be compelled to testify? Must he answer all questions? How may a witness be examined? (ss 120-167).

The following materials by Stephen are useful to gain a fuller understanding of the scheme of the Act (of which he was the draftsman): ‘Introduction to the Evidence Act, 1872’ (in particular, read the chapter entitled: ‘General distribution of the subject’) and the ‘Stephen’s Digest’ (the introductory chapter). These items are included in the materials you have been given. The complete texts may be found in the reserved books section of the library (see the reading list).

V. Relevancy and admissibility

- Facts in issue and relevant facts: the distinction.
- S 5 states that facts in issue and relevant facts may be proved.
- S 3 defines facts in issue.
- Ss 6 - 57 state all the categories of facts which are regarded as relevant facts. Note s 5 which states that only those facts declared by the Act to be relevant may be adduced in evidence.
- S 3(2) does not define the term “relevance” but merely states that a fact will be relevant if it is so declared by the Act.
- Meaning of ‘relevance’. One of Stephen's definitions:
  - “Facts from the existence of which inferences as to the existence of the facts in issue may be drawn.” (Introduction to the Evidence Act, 1872, para 15; Digest of the Law of Evidence, p xii.)
  - The meaning of relevancy in English Law: Distinctions are made between relevancy and admissibility and between legal and logical relevancy.
  - Also note quotes in R v A (No 2) [2002] 1 AC 45 and DPP v Kilbourne [1973] AC 729 (referred to in the slides).
- Sections 6-9 and 11 of the EA
- “Direct’ and ‘circumstantial” evidence.
  - Sunny Ang v PP (1966) 2 MLJ 195.
- Parties have a right to adduce admissible evidence: Basil Anthony Herman v Premier Security Co-operative Ltd [2010] 3 SLR 110.
- Court to decide on relevance/admissibility: S 138 of Evidence Act.
Distinguish between admissibility (determined by law) and weight (determined by assessment of the evidence).

VI. Modes of proof: Oral, documentary and real evidence.

Oral evidence: s 62(1): Allows witnesses to give direct evidence of facts in issue and relevant facts. The relevant fact must be personally perceived. This sometimes referred to as the direct evidence rule. Note that in civil cases, witnesses generally give their evidence in chief by affidavit. Once they have confirmed their affidavits at trial, they may be cross-examined. In criminal cases, evidence is presented by the traditional method of examination in chief.

Documentary evidence: ss 63-102. These are provisions governing the proof of documents.

Real evidence: s 62(3). The distinction between documentary and real evidence can be difficult to make at times. This is important because an item which is classified as real evidence may be admitted as original evidence, while a document which is adduced as evidence of its assertions may be excluded as being hearsay. (This will be considered in the course of the hearsay lectures.)

VII. Effect of Illustrations in Evidence Act.

- Mahomed Syedol bin Arifin v Yeoh Ooi Gark (1916) 2 AC 575 at 581.
- PP v Muhammad Rahmatullah Maniam bin Abdullah [1999] SGHC 252, at [35].

VIII. Role of Judge as Trier of Fact

If the Judge excludes evidence, he proceeds to hear the other evidence and must keep the excluded evidence out of his mind. The Judges generally indicate that this is not an issue of concern.

Consider the observations in:
- Tan Meng Jee v PP [1996] 2 SLR(R) 178, at [48].
- Tan Chee Kieng v PP [1994] 2 SLR(R) 577 at [8].

I. QUESTIONS AND POINTS TO CONSIDER

2. Consider s 5 of the EA
3. Are the admissibility provisions of the EA and CPC sufficient to ensure that admitted evidence will always be in the interest of justice?

5. What is the effect of s 2(2) of the EA on the question raised in (4)?
6. Specific discretions in s 32(3) and s 47(4) of the EA concerning hearsay and expert opinion evidence. See cases on s 32(3) in hearsay slides.
7. Minister’s comment in Parliament that s 32(3) and s 47(4) of the EA are in addition to the court’s inherent jurisdiction to exclude evidence.
